

References

Y-16

1. Zhou K, Schenk R, Brogan M. The wound healing trajectory and predictors with combined electric stimulation and conventional care: one outpatient wound care clinic's experience. Eur J Clin Invest. 2016;46 (12):1017–1023.
2. Khouri C, Kotzi S, Roustit M, et al. Hierarchical evaluation of electrical stimulation protocols for chronic wound healing: An effect size meta-analysis. Wound Rep Reg. 2017;25:883–891
3. Hunckler J, de Mel A. A current affair: electrotherapy in wound healing. J Multidiscip Healthc. 2017;10:179-194.
4. Qaseem A, Humphrey LL, Forciea MA, et al. Treatment of pressure ulcers: a clinical practice guideline from the American College of Physicians. Ann Intern Med. Mar 3 2015;162(5):370-379.
5. Polak A, Kloth LC, Blaszczyk E, et al. The Efficacy of Pressure Ulcer Treatment With Cathodal and Cathodal-Anodal High-Voltage Monophasic Pulsed Current: A Prospective, Randomized, Controlled Clinical Trial. Phys Ther. 2017;97(8):777-789.
6. Wound Ostomy and Continence Nurses Society (WOCN). 2016 Guideline for prevention and management of pressure ulcers (injuries). J Wound Ostomy Continence Nurs. 2017;44(3):241-246.
7. Girgis B, Duarte JA. High Voltage Monophasic Pulsed Current (HVMP) for stage II-IV pressure ulcer healing. A systematic review and meta-analysis. J Tissue Viability. 2018;4:274-284.